New restaurant to move in after Red Oak Cafe closes

Aug 3, 2017, 7:47am EDT Updated: Aug 3, 2017, 8:17am EDT

A new restaurant is moving into the soon-to-be vacant spot of the Red Oak Cafe in Oakland.

A news release from Red Oak's owners said that Roots Natural Kitchen, based in Charlottesville, Va., would be opening up in the space on Forbes Avenue where Red Oak Cafe had been in business for the past 11 years.

Red Oak Cafe will close Friday. It said in a statement that it was "moved by the kindness of their customers and wish everyone good health." It thanked its landlord, UPMC, plus Terri Sokoloff of Specialty Group, for handling the sale of the business.
